

General Data Protection Regulation

Are you really GDPR compliant?

Many companies and organizations have taken actions to comply with the GDPR requirements as of 25 May 2018 and have adopted policies and procedures for the protection of personal data during the entire life cycle of the information.

Compliance however, with the General Data Protection Regulation is not an obligation completed on 25 May 2018 with no further action to be taken. GDPR is now part of our lives and will continue to be, and as such an ongoing process, measures are required to ensure compliance at all times.

Companies should closely follow their business practices in their day to day operations; practices that may require both regular and ad hoc advice and guidance to ensure on-going compliance.

KPMG, as a Platinum corporate member of IAPP (International Association of Privacy Professionals), leads the way in data privacy protection, working closely with CPA Law, an independent law firm and member of the international legal and tax network of KPMG. Our professionals provide GDPR Auditing Services to organizations aspiring and willing to be "GDPR ready" at all times.
